Connecting Care

A Collaborative Approach to Building Seamless Pathways for In-Home Support

The new Aged Care Act has reshaped how older people access and navigate in-home support services. It is essential that hospitals and support at home providers continue to work closely together to strengthen pathways and ensure a coordinated, person-centred approach.

Through collaboration, we can better support older people to maintain their independence.

This forum brings together hospital clinicians and in-home support providers to:

- Hear directly from experts in providing in-home support
- Explore the key challenges and barriers home support providers face with hospital connections
- Co-design practical solutions for hospitals to better connect with home support providers
