

Supporting allied health professionals in primary care

Brisbane North PHN has established the Allied Health Collaborative (AHC) to support allied health professionals in our region to facilitate patient-centred, integrated health care. The AHC provides opportunities to network, engage and connect, strengthening collaboration between the allied health sector, primary care and the PHN.

Partnering with purpose

The Collaborative

Allied health professionals representing the sector share their experiences with the PHN through the AHC.

The Steering Committee reviews the AHC's feedback and provides strategic guidance and recommendations for the PHN to consider.

Allied Health Steering Committee

Brisbane North PHN

The PHN reviews Steering Committee recommendations, makes decisions within PHN scope of influence and communicates outcomes with the AHC.

Membership

The AHC is an inclusive, multidisciplinary group, comprising members from a diverse range of allied health professions and sectors.

Participation in our engagement activities is on an ad hoc basis with no formal meetings.

There are regular opportunities to collaborate with the PHN, share your experiences, provide valuable insights and network with your allied health colleagues via the AHC.

Benefits

Benefits of joining the AHC include:

- connecting with the PHN for greater support and collaboration
- receiving the Allied Health Connect newsletter (bi-monthly)
- accessing allied health resources and support
- professional development and training opportunities
- networking and events.
